Enjoy the lifetime Crack.7/10 - Going back in time to find out why all these films were made, I found out one of the reasons that the concept of "Clooney on the Moon" came about was that I remember reading somewhere (and I don't know who was saying this) that when a crew of astronauts went to the moon, they were in an environment that was identical to the environment that they were in. As this was going on, the crew was trying to get information from the moon. They called on the earth, so what did the audience hear on the radio? You guessed it - President Richard Nixon! The idea was that they called on Nixon to ask if he was around, and he'd say that he was, so the audience could hear, "This is the President
